- Police Reports dated January 1845 concerning the Toulon Cercle des Travailleurs, founded by workers during Flora Tristan's visit and banned by the Minister of the Interior in Paris in his letter to the Prefect dated 4 February 1845, pp. 483–6.

Breton, André, 'Flora Tristan: sept lettres inédites', Le Surréalisme même, 3, 1957, pp. 4–12.

Michaud, Stéphane, 'Flora Tristan: trente-cinq lettres', International Review of Social History, 1979, 24 (1), pp. 80–125. These include 25 letters to Olympe Chodzko dated between 8 December 1837 and May 1840 of which five were written from London. Michaud mentioned all 35 letters in his first volume of Tristan's edited letters, Flora Tristan Lettres, Paris, Seuil, 1980, but replaced the text of a letter from Victor Considérant to Flora Tristan, dated 5 April 1838, in response to her request to attend a commemorative meeting for Fourier, with a summary of what Flora Tristan's letter may have contained. The emphasis on this first collection of Tristan's letters was on establishing evidence of her authorship as a correspondent.

Flora Tristan. La Paria et son rêve, correspondance établie par Stéphane Michaud, Fontenay/Saint-Cloud, E. N. S. Editions, 1995; re-edition with preface by Mario Vargas Llosa, Paris, Presses Sorbonne nouvelle, 2003.
