

NGOs, IGOs, AND THE NETWORK MECHANISMS
OF POST-CONFLICT GLOBAL GOVERNANCE
IN MICROFINANCE

NGOs, IGOs, AND THE NETWORK
MECHANISMS OF POST-CONFLICT
GLOBAL GOVERNANCE IN MICROFINANCE

ANNA OHANYAN

palgrave
macmillan

NGOS, IGOs, AND THE NETWORK MECHANISMS OF POST-CONFLICT GLOBAL GOVERNANCE
IN MICROFINANCE

Copyright © Anna Ohanyan, 2008.

Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 2008 978-0-230-60769-9
All rights reserved.

First published in 2008 by
PALGRAVE MACMILLAN®
in the United States—a division of St. Martin's Press LLC, 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10010.

Where this book is distributed in the UK, Europe and the rest of the world,
this is by Palgrave Macmillan, a division of Macmillan Publishers Limited, registered in England, company number 785998, of Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS.

Palgrave Macmillan is the global academic imprint of the above companies and has companies and representatives throughout the world.

Palgrave® and Macmillan® are registered trademarks in the United States, the United Kingdom, Europe and other countries.

ISBN 978-1-349-37440-3      ISBN 978-0-230-61610-3 (eBook)
DOI 10.1057/9780230616103

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Ohanyan, Anna.

NGOs, IGOs, and the network mechanisms of post-conflict global governance in microfinance / Anna Ohanyan.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

1. Policy networks. 2. Non-governmental organizations—Bosnia and Hercegovina. 3. Non-governmental organizations—Afghanistan. 4.
Non-governmental organizations—Kosovo (Republic)
5. Microfinance—Bosnia and Hercegovina. 6. Microfinance—
Afghanistan. 7. Microfinance—Kosovo (Republic) I. Title.

H97.7.O34 2008

332—dc22

2008012349

A catalogue record of the book is available from the British Library.

Design by Newgen Imaging Systems (P) Ltd., Chennai, India.

First edition: November 2008

To my parents, Susanna and Suren Ohanyan

CONTENTS

List of Figures and Tables	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Acronyms	xv
Introduction: The Promises and Perils of Network Governance	1
One NGOs, IGOs, and Global Public Policies	21
Two Transnationalism of Networks in Bosnia and Herzegovina	55
Three Local Politics of Transnational Networks in Bosnia and Herzegovina	87
Four Afghanistan: How Policies Travel	113
Five Kosovo: Lost in Translation	145
Six Is All Policy Portability Progressive?	171
Seven Network Mechanisms of Global Governance	193
Notes	209
Bibliography	215
Index	229

FIGURES AND TABLES

Figures

2.1	Degree of Power Concentration and the Level of Policy Coherence	61
2.2	Partner network	63

Tables

1.1	Peace-building and institution-building	25
1.2	Network typology	42
2.1	Network typology with cases	59
3.1	Network typology in Bosnia and Herzegovina	90
3.2	Peace-building indicators	92
3.3	Institution-building indicators	93

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

In the fall of 1999, a group of researchers led by Wolfgang Reinicke joined together for the UN Vision Project on Global Public Policy Networks, an initiative funded by the United Nations Foundation. Taking part in that project proved transformative for my research agenda. What began as a policy paper in that forum evolved into a dissertation and subsequent publications, and ultimately formed the foundation of the present book. I would like to thank Wolfgang Reinicke of the Global Policy Institute and his colleagues for this opportunity.

The field research for this work would not have been possible without generous support from various institutions including the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University, Stonehill College, and the Eurasia Foundation-Armenia. Stonehill College and the Eurasia Foundation-Armenia in particular were instrumental in enabling my research on the Stability Pact for South Eastern Europe. I again extend my gratitude to the insightful and dedicated policymakers I met at the Stability Pact. Funding from Syracuse University made possible my fieldwork in Bosnia and Herzegovina. The generosity and hospitality of the East European Studies Program at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in 2007 is also acknowledged and greatly appreciated. Their generous support allowed the cross-region study of post-conflict microfinance in Afghanistan, Bosnia and Herzegovina, and Kosovo, and afforded important access to key officials within the U.S. Department of State, USAID, the World Bank, and NGOs based in Washington, DC.

Throughout my research for this book, I have benefited from insightful comments, feedback, and encouragement from many academic colleagues, practitioners, and policymakers. In particular, Margaret Hermann and Mehrzad Boroujerdi of Syracuse University, Mitchell Orenstein of Johns Hopkins University, Suzanne Mettler of Cornell University, and Katrina Burgess of Tufts University were the key supporters in the formative stages of this work, and I remain grateful for their support. I also thank Hans Peter Schmitz of Syracuse University for insightful comments and valuable suggestions at various stages of this work over the years. I am similarly greatly appreciative of Robert Rotberg and fellow researchers at the Intrastate Conflict Program at the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University who provided a stimulating environment and unique perspectives on issues of post-conflict governance during my two-year fellowship at the program from 2002 to 2004. The insightful suggestions provided by Daniel Lieberfeld of Duquesne University was also essential as the manuscript progressed to publication. And I thank Anthony Wahl and his colleagues at Palgrave Macmillan for their confidence in and support for this project, and to the reviewers of this book as well for their astute and helpful comments.

My appreciation for the cooperation, time, and trust of the nearly hundred respondents across the globe for this project is impossible to overstate. In particular, I extend my deep gratitude to the respondents and their colleagues in microfinance NGOs in Bosnia and Herzegovina, Afghanistan, and Kosovo. Their genuine, analytical, and insightful responses have been crucial in shaping this research over the years. I am humbled by the experience and knowledge of these practitioners and policymakers, who work in the NGO sector, in international organizations and bilateral developmental agencies, and with developmental banks worldwide, often in very difficult and challenging post-conflict settings. They are champions of principled and important causes, enduring hardships on daily basis that few can imagine. I am thankful for their hospitality and willingness to tell their stories of war and peace. My humble hope is that the present book can be of use in assisting their missions of addressing the challenges and suffering in war-torn societies.

Special thanks go to my students at Stonehill College for their intellectual courage and independent thinking on issues of post-conflict governance. The dynamic, exciting, and energizing environment that they create in the classroom has allowed me to share with them ideas from this book and to hear them again in turn from their fresh perspectives. Indeed, these interactions have contributed to the articulation, crafting, and refinement of many of the concepts and analyses. It is in my students, independent and critical thinkers, and in my teaching that I see the social purpose of my research every day.

This book would not have been possible without the faithful support of my family and friends who have made the process a pleasant and productive experience. My twin two-year old daughters, Isabelle Ani and Elise Mariam, have been a constant source of joy and adventure. They have given me a fantastic escape to a world of “small wonders” and exploration that I hope to reciprocate by striving for a future unbound by legacies of war and violence.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS / xiii

Finally, it is my husband, Aram Adourian, whom I celebrate for the unwavering support and intellectual company throughout this work, whether changing diapers or sharing network theories from physics. It is his presence in all facets of my life that makes it complete and brings it all together. For this, I have no words.

ACRONYMS

AED	Academy for Educational Development
AfK	Agency for Finance in Kosovo
AKAM	Aga Khan Agency for Microfinance
ALP	Alternative Livelihoods Programs
ARIES	Agriculture Rural Investment and Enterprise Strengthening
ARMP	Afghanistan Rural Microcredit Programme
BiH	Bosnia and Herzegovina
BRAC	Bangladesh Rural Advancement Committee
BZMF	Beselidhja Zavet Microfinance Program of World Relief
CGAP	Consultative Group to Assist the Poor
CIDA	Canadian International Development Agency
CORDAID	Catholic Organization for Relief and Development
CWS	Church World Services
DANIDA	Danish International Development Agency
DFID	Department for International Development
DPC	Degree of Power Concentration
EBRD	The European Bank of Reconstruction and Development
EFSE	European Fund for Southeastern Europe
EKI	Ekonomska Kreditna Institucija
ICMC	International Catholic Migration Committee
IDP	Internally Displaced Person
IDRC	The International Development and Research Centre
IFC	International Finance Corporation
KEP	Kosovo Enterprise Program
KfW	Kreditanstalt für Wiederaufbau
KWI	Kosovo Women's Initiative
LID	Local Initiatives Department
LPC	Level of Policy Coherence MFI—Microfinance Institution

xvi / ACRONYMS

MFMI	Microfinance Management Institute
MISFA	Microfinance Investment Support Facility for Afghanistan
NGO	Nongovernmental Organization
PISG	Provisional Institutions of Self-government
SIDA	Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency
SME	Small and Medium Enterprise
UMCOR	United Methodist Committee on Relief
UNDP	United Nations Development Programme
UNHCR	United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees
UNMIK	UN Interim Administration Mission in Kosovo
USAID	United States Agency for International Development
USBPRM	U.S. Department of State Bureau of Population, Refugees and Migration
USDA	United States Department of Agriculture
WFW	Women for Women International
WOCCU	World Council of Credit Unions
WV	World Vision
WWB	Women's World Banking
WWICS	Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars